From the President's desk...

Pray for Rain!

I think our prayers have been answered. When I wrote this article, it was a sunny day; however, it rained or should I say poured the day before with more rain on its way. Folks are saying we received more rain in two days than we did all last year total. Loving the rain, love it even more when there is a day or two with no rain so the ground dries out – and I can prune my roses. 50 roses pruned with 350 left. Goal is to have them pruned by Valentine's day.

My travels: Unfortunately, I had to cancel two visits due to illness. My apologies to the members of the Chicago Park Garden Club for missing out on their annual Victorian Tea – it would have been my tenth time attending. My apologies also to the members of the Linden Community Garden Club – I enjoyed myself from the previous year and was really looking forward to it again.

The President's Project received grant monies from the Auburn Garden Club, and since Auburn is practically in my back yard, I was honored to be there to accept the check. Thank You! I also attended their Christmas luncheon a few weeks later.

Mid-December, I was fortunate to attend the Southern California Garden Club's Christmas Luncheon/Meeting. It was great visiting with members, who remembered seeing me in June. I attended the Colfax and Roseville Better Gardens Club Christmas luncheons as well. It is amazing how many times one sings the Twelve Days of Christmas and how it is "performed."

In January I attended the Folsom Garden Club meeting and it was standing room only.

Late February will take me south to the Palomar District – I hope it is warm and sunny. Doesn't matter what the weather would be, I am sure it will be an educational and fun time. I'm even doing their new officer's installation.

I enjoy meeting members and getting to know California as I travel throughout the state.

Thank you for your continued support to the President's Project and thank you for the opportunity to serve as your CGCI President.

Cheers,
SueB

The best way to garden is to put on a wide-brimmed straw hat and some old clothes. And with a hoe in one hand and a cold drink in the other, tell somebody else where to dig.

Club & District Corner

Ceres GC: Smokey Bear/Woody Owl Poster Contest - Over 300 posters were submitted from grades 1 – 5 from many schools throughout Ceres Unified After School Program. Not an easy task, the judging required heart-breaking elimination of great posters due to slight infraction of the official rules. Final selections were forwarded to California Garden Clubs, Inc. for state judging. All students will be awarded a Certificate of Participation, with prizes going to the winners in each grade level.

Judging the posters →

Ramona GC: Each year several clubs in San Diego decorate trees for the annual December Nights festival in Balboa Park. Over 200,000 people attend the two day event. Ramona members made ornaments for their entry that followed the theme “Plants with Animal Names.” Ornaments included Dogwood, Foxglove, Skunkweed, Catnip, Kangaroo Paws and more. Children had a great time matching the plant to the animal ornaments.

Southern California GC: Anyone recognize the “tall” elf spreading cheer at the annual Christmas luncheon?

→ And check out the clever cork reindeer “place cards.” ←

San Diego Garden Guild: In February the Guild will hold a Valentine’s Day Tea with a special guest from the Beatrix Potter Society. The Society, based in London, England has publicized the event on their website. Congratulations on obtaining international recognition.

Club newsletters: Did you know? There are currently 322 garden clubs and associate plant societies in the CGCI family. Of those only NINE (9) organizations send copies of their newsletter to this editor! Golden Gardens eNews is YOUR voice in CGCI and we would love to highlight your wonderful, creative and inspiring projects and activities. In the Garden this month...

Excerpted from
Sunset Magazine

- Following our unexpected but much-needed rain be prepared. Mosquitoes breed in anything that holds standing water: pots, buckets, dishes, and birdbaths, etc. Hose out birdbaths regularly and empty vessels filled with dirty water.
- Cut back ornamental grasses before new growth starts. Gather the blades by looping twine around the clump, about 12 inches above ground. Pull the twine tight around the blades, and then cut the grass about 4 to 6 inches above ground. Compost the clippings.
- Start seeds of beets, carrots, collards, fava beans, kale, leeks, lettuce, parsley, peas, rutabaga, spinach, and turnip.
- Cut back woody shrubs. Zones 7-9, 14-17: To stimulate lush new growth on artemisia, butterfly bush, fuchsia, and Mexican bush sage, cut back woody stems to within a few inches of the ground. If left unpruned, plants become leggy and scraggly-looking.
- If your cymbidium orchids are bulging out of their containers or the bark has decomposed, it's time to repot them. Do this between mid-February and early July to assure bloom next season. Remove old bark, cut off dead roots, and discard soft or rotted bulbs. Repot the plant into a larger container, or divide plants into groups of three to five pseudobulbs (bulbs with leaves). Replant in medium-size bark or purchase a cymbidium mix.
- Give your sweetheart a valentine that will live on long after February 14. Tie a red ribbon around a lemon tree or put a bow on a bare-root rose. Or choose a flowering plant that can go outdoors after bloom is through. Choices include azaleas, camellias, carnations, gardenias, and Oriental lilies.

E is for Edible Flowers By Judy Paul, Red Bluff Garden Club

I had to think a bit for an alphabet themed topic. E seemed a bit elusive until I thought of edible. I knew that Nasturtiums and squash blossoms were edible, but can't say that I have tried either of them. Well, with the help of Google, I discovered that there is a huge variety of flowers that are edible! If you are intrigued with the possibilities of new tastes, then Google for more details. I also saw that Pinterest has many recipes with awesome pictures.

The practice of eating flowers dates back to early Roman, Middle East, Indian, and Chinese cultures. Often they were favored for their medicinal values. Edible flowers are now "in vogue" and quite common in fancy dining places. Flowers can add color, flavor, and a touch of whimsy to your cooking.

Not every flower is edible, and it is most important to know for sure which are safe to eat. Some can make you sick, cause digestive problems or allergic reactions. So start slowly, trying one variety at a time. It is best to grow your own plants organically, without pesticides and sprays. Never purchase flowers to eat from a florist or gather flowers along a roadside as you can't ensure their safety. Some on the "unsafe" list include Irises, Calla Lilies, Sweet Peas, Oleander, and Periwinkles.

Pick the flowers early in the day, wash thoroughly, and check for insects. It will be best to pick them the day of use, although you can store them in a hard sided container after washing and drying them completely.

In most cases it is the flower petals that are eaten. Pull out the stamens and pistils from the middle of flower. If the petals have a white tip break that off as it is often bitter. Some leaves are fine also. Pansies and Johnny-Jump-ups can be eaten as the whole flower! The flowers are rich in nutrients, and have almost zero calories!!

Edible flowers are used in a variety of ways. Frequently the petals are used in salads, stir fries, pastas, sandwiches, and soups. Many of course are used in teas. They make wonderful flavored vinegars and oils which can later be used for salads and seasonings. They enhance jellies and flavor ice creams and syrups. Sugar-coated flowers make beautiful garnishes for cakes, and the blossoms frozen in ice cubes make a lovely, refreshing drink.

There are many to consider. Agastache, Calendula, Lavender, Nasturtiums, Roses, Pansies, Johnny-Jump-ups, Daylilies, Tulips, Marigolds, Hyssop, Mint, Chives, Basil, Bee Balm, Lemon Verbena, and Squash blossoms all offer some wonderful possibilities for culinary experimentation!

Follow the general guidelines, and enjoy a new taste sensation while adding some rainbow colors to your diet. Perhaps this could be a fun new thing to try in the New Year!

President's ProjectWho Will Teach Them If We Don't Maryanne Lucas, Chairman

If you are reading this newsletter, you are most likely a member of a garden club. And if you are a member of a garden club, you are most likely a lover of gardens.

Who introduced you to gardening?

For most of us, the answer is that a parent, grandparent or a older family friend or neighbor introduced us to the joys and wonders of gardening.

Through the centuries, gardens were an important part of daily life. For thousands of years, people spent their days working shoulder-to-shoulder with their families, tilling the earth and reaping its rewards. They planted fruits and vegetables to eat, flowers to beautify their homes, and herbs to use for medicine and flavor. But things changed over the last 200 years. This change has been quick and it has been drastic. People around the world have moved into more crowded urban areas and found new ways to make a living... most of which do not include gardening or nature.

Never before in the course of history have so many people, and especially our children, been so far removed from nature and so distanced from the earth, plants and fellow creatures. The result is children who are less healthy, less "enlightened" and less knowledgeable about the natural world upon which their lives depend.

We can change this dire situation. With very little effort, YOU can help to bring the excitement of the natural world and lessons to be learned in a garden to children throughout the state. The free kits available through the President's Project, Encouraging Future Gardeners, makes it fun and easy. Take advantage of this wonderful opportunity now... just in time for spring. National Garden Clubs, Inc.Leap into Leadership*Robin Pokorski, NGC Chairman (Head Leaper)

A Leap into Leadership workshop benefits members in many ways, not only the basic leadership information presented, but each workshop adds ideas, tips and techniques for the next workshop.

In New Mexico, a number of fun ideas were presented. For example:

- one raffle prize was an all-expenses-paid trip to attend the state convention.
- A colorful handout, listing critical award dates and deadlines, was distributed.
- Members were encouraged to mingle. A clever method to accomplish this was utilized. Each member selected a square of colored paper from a bowl upon entering the workshop and was seated at a table sporting the same color paper.
- Suzy Andrego, president, New Mexico Garden Clubs Inc., presented small gifts to all those who were attending their first fall board meeting.
- I can attest to the warmth and friendliness of members attending the workshop in New Mexico—I received three lunch offers before anyone knew who I was.

NGC President Sandy Robinson wants all of us to invest in the future leadership of our clubs, districts, states, regions, and our national organization. Here is that vehicle. Take advantage of it!

Are you interested in going to Seattle Washington? How about Richmond, Virginia?

Delegates from our state are needed to represent CGCI at both the Pacific Region Convention and NGC Conventions:

- April 18-20, 2017: Pacific Region Convention
 Host: Washington State Federation of Garden Clubs
 Embassy Suites Seattle-Tacoma International Airport
- May 16-21: NGC Convention, Richmond, VA
 Host: Virginia Federation of Garden Clubs, Inc.

If you are interested, please let CGCI Corresponding Secretary Carolyn Hoyum, cgcicorrespondingsecy@cagardenclubs.org, know so that your name can be added to the list for approval.

NOTE: Attendance at these conventions is not financially supported by CGCI.
