Endowment Fundraisers*Julie West, Chairman, Board of Trustees

The Endowment Committee is excited to announce a special fundraiser available at CGCI's 2018 Convention. Make a gift of $100 or more to CGCI's endowment fund and you will receive the limited-edition canvas tote pictured here. These beautiful artistic tote bags, designed by Mary Lake Thompson in Oroville, make an excellent gift for incoming/outgoing club presidents while supporting both CGCI and Scholarship Endowment Funds (proceeds are split 50/50).

It's people like you who make a difference in supporting the two Endowments! Our goal is to raise a minimum of $1,800 ($900 for each fund.) Bring your donation to convention to further augment the objectives and purposes of CGCI and make a lasting contribution to the CGCI and Scholarship Endowment Funds.

Only a limited number of tote bags are available. If you would like to reserve your bag prior to convention with your pledged donation of $100 or more, contact ajcarol@aol.com. Bring your pledged donation (payable to CGCI) when you pick up your reserved tote. The success of this fundraiser is determined by your generosity and support. We look forward to seeing you at CGCI's 2018 convention June 4-7!

BREAKING NEWS – California Garden Clubs, Inc. is the beneficiary of two tickets for a 2018-2019 Golden State Warriors game at Oracle Arena in Oakland donated to specifically raise money for the CGCI Scholarship Endowment Fund during Convention. A certificate with details on how to claim these FREE tickets goes to the highest bidder. Bring your checkbook for this priceless experience to see the 2017 NBA Champions in person!

Tech Tips!Jane McKee, CGCI Communications Director

Some tips, tricks and reminders when using the internet

- The "spoofers, scammers and phishers" are still out there (and will not go away any time soon). If you receive a suspicious email always check the sending email address. Following are examples of such mail and can be ignored and deleted:
 - ◊ The address does not match one you know to be the sender's.
 - ◊ It looks like a legitimate address but the message asks for funds, wire transfers or other activities not appropriate for you or your organization.
 - ◊ The message is strangely worded - uses your last name first (Hello McKee Jane) or has definite grammar or punctuation errors. Most likely comes from a non-English speaking writer.
- CGCI online forms:
 - ◊ Please DO NOT CAPITALIZE your entries. Information from the forms are bulk uploaded to various lists and databases. Capitalizing all words means the administrator must manually correct before uploading.
 - ◊ Form submissions are automatically sent to the appropriate CGCI chairman, officer and Website Administrator. Copies do not need to be mailed or emailed.
- Replies to bulk mail distribution:
 - ◊ If asked to reply to an email distributed via Mail Chimp, DO NOT reply to the sent email. Create a separate email to the address provided in the text by the CGCI officer or chairman. Direct replies come only to this administrator so be careful what you say!!!

Parades are EXCLUDED from CGCI Liability Insurance Policy & Other Reminders Shane Looper, Insurance Chairman

As summer approaches and local parades may be on your club's horizon, let's review what activities are included for CGCI's Liability coverage:

- Normal activities typically include meetings, luncheons, volunteering at public gardens (under the direction of the agency), garden tours, field trips, flower and plant shows, sales, workshops, etc. Signs and banners are fine. It is expected, as a non-profit organization, you will have guests from the general public at your activities.
- Normal activities do not include work done on the behalf of others usually under contract. Premises liability is not included without specifically scheduling on the policy. CGCI's program has determined premises liability exposures not eligible for the program include owning real estate, exclusive ongoing use of building premises or having primary use of, or any degree of ongoing maintenance responsibility for gardens or land (including Community Gardens.) There are many situations that are not immediately clear in this regard and need to be individually evaluated. DO NOT AS-SUME COVERAGE! ALL Liability exposures must be insured.

What Activities Would Need to be Added?

Additional premium will normally be charged in the following cases:

- Outings over two days;
- Activities/events out of the usual scope such as a street fair where the streets are blocked off, an Oktoberfest, etc.
- Activities with more than 1000 in attendance (1001 or more)
- Parades: Underwriting information needs to be gathered and submitted to the under-writer for review for any parade activity. Individuals could be held responsible for legal liability and defense since club is NOT COVERED unless the parade exposure is underwritten by completing Parade Questionnaire and approved.
- Work done for others for a fee or trade.

Contractual agreements - Why do we ask for contracts?

- We need to see the entire contract to determine the relationship between the club and the other party and the nature of the activity involved and how it relates to insurance coverage.
- There are many different additional insured endorsements and the contract will determine which to use.
- Certain wording is required to be in the contract in order to issue certain endorsements.
- Other insurance requirements may be tucked away in the agreement that are not immediately obvious to the casual observer.
- A copy of ALL PAGES of any agreement requesting an Additional Insured must be sent in along with your application and fee BEFORE any Additional Insured endorsement can be issued.

Carpools and Errands

- Clubs should verify that drivers have legal limits of insurance coverage before allowing volunteers to drive on their behalf. Carpools can be encouraged but never assigned.
People must be free to decide who they will ride with.
- In addition, do not make a map showing directions people should travel on or provide specific written directions. If using a map, state that it is not to scale. Show locations only, not turn-by-turn directions, on how to travel from place to place. If someone is injured following your map, you could be sued as they were following your written directions. Providing copies of MapQuest, Google maps or something similar with their directions is a "safer" way to protect the club.

Final Tip – Start Early

Sometimes, handling the insurance takes a surprising amount of time, particularly if contracts have unusual or impossible requirements or if the contract needs to be renegotiat-

NGC's Gardening SchoolsGreg Pokorski, Chairman

As this garden club year quickly draws to a close, I can help you make plans to begin a Gardening School (GS) in your new garden club year. What is this school and why should you want one?

- It is one of the four educational schools developed and administered nationwide by National Garden Clubs, Inc. (NGC). It began as a 1975-77 pilot program of the Federated Garden Clubs of Michigan, becoming NGC's third school in 1977 before many Master Gardener Programs were founded (California's Master Gardener Program did not begin until 1980). This four-course (six classes and ten hours of instruction per course) program can help fulfill CGCI's and NGC's education mission. This school is intended to help novice and experienced gardeners become accomplished horticulturists. Classes cover basic botany, soils, plant propagation, diseases and pests, growing flowers, fruits, vegetables, trees, lawns and lawn alternatives. Each course includes one supplemental subject which can specifically cover local interests.
- CGCI's clubs or districts may sponsor this or any NGC School. NGC provides the infrastructure with this well-established educational program for you to provide education to your members and to the public. Instructors can be found in your local colleges and universities, community colleges, high schools, occupational education programs, nurseries, botanic gardens and in private practice as garden and landscape designers, arborists etc. By sponsoring a school, you should be able to increase the visibility of your garden club, district and CGCI and the good works they do while attracting some new members, encouraging future gardeners, and hopefully making a little money – while developing teamwork and cooperation among those who perform the work of conducting the school. I can assure you that holding a school can bring you new members and can make money because my club, Southern California Garden Club, has sponsored three of the 25 Gardening School series that have been held in California from 1979 to 2016.
- Garden club members who complete the school may be certified as NGC Gardening Consultants. See the roster of Gardening Consultants listed on pages 56-58 of the current Yearbook, Manual & Roster (all club presidents and all CGCI board members have a copy). Some of these people may be willing to provide advice or assist in various ways with your school. While we want Gardening Consultants to be involved in their communities and give back to their clubs, there is no obligation to provide community service as there is in the Master Gardener program.
- One state garden club president recently said about this school, "I can already heartily recommend it to any gardener who wants to sharpen their gardening skills, add to the depth of their horticultural understanding, and engage with other gardeners in a friendly social setting that encourages an exchange of knowledge and fosters questions common to gardeners."

Contact this chairman for details – GregPokorski@earthlink.net, 818-361-7873.

Continuing education is required for Gardening Consultants to maintain their status and my club is offering such an educational event on June 25. Come check it out and we can discuss getting your school started.
